Stocks—Duil again to-day, only 69,379 shares changing hands in the two hours to mid-day, the closing hour. Prices were weak during the greater part, and foreign selling together with the announcement of the fallure of the Bank of River Platte, London, caused prices to give way sharply during the first hour. Cleveland, Columbus, Cacinnati and Indianapolis and Burlington were weaker at 11 o'clock. The decline ranged from 1/2 to 11/2 per cent. In the hour to noon there was a fractional recovery on the fayorable showing of the bank statement.

The important changes in the principal items of the New York bank statement for the week are: Surplus reserve, increase, 3,947,650; loans, increase, $475,500; specie, increase, $2,266,400; legal tender, increase, $3,185,100; deposits, increase, $6,015,400; circulation, increase, $61,800.

The dry goods market to-day was absolutely featureless. Imports of dry goods at the port of New York during the week, beside being much heavier than those of last week, were the largest for any one week in a long time past, having mounted up to $2,931,726. The same is also true of the amount thrown on the market, which aggregated $2,647,551. Last week's figures were $1,977,053 and $5,74,399 respectively. were $1,977,053 and $5,774,399 respectively.

pecial to the Gazette. New Orleans, La., July 18.—Atwood, Violet & Co. say: Futures—Liverpool opened weak this morning, but closed steadier, although still at a decline of 2-64d from yesterday. Spots were quoted irregular and depressed, with sales of only 4000 bales. There was a small decline of several points in New York and here, but at the closing both markets were much steadier, with a loss of about one point on the day. It was reported from London that the Bank of the River Plate of London and Buenes Ayres had finally closed its doors. This institution has been in difficulty for nearly a year, and the failure now is only the abandonment of the strenuous efforts which have been made to put its affairs into shape again.

The incident, while naturally unsettling financial matters somewhat, has no great significance, owing to the previous doubtful standing of the bank. Spots here were very much neglected to-day, but while prices were not marked down, they are quoted as weak and ir-

A Rush to Sell.

New York, July 18.—The failure of the English bank of the River Platte was an-nounced in London this morning, and caused materially lower prices for all kinds of stocks there. Our market felt the effects of this decline, and while the opening prices here were above London equivalents, large fractions were knocked off of the most active shares. The opportunity to sell the market down was not to be neglected by the bears, however, and they oined with the frightened sellers in press ing the market down. Stocks which have an international mar ket in the main differed most under the circumstances, but Burlington and Lacka-wanna led the downward movement. Prices in the last few minutes were brought to in the last few minutes were brought to about a level of those of the opening, and the market closed firm, though quiet, at a recovery. The final changes are insignifi-cant in all cases, being generally losses made at the opening of business only. Railroad, government and state dull and steady.

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT AT ROME.

The Description as Written by a Youthful American Traveler. Heloise, a little American girl, ten years of age, writes as follows from Rome to St. Perhaps you would like to hear son thing about the opening of parliament in Rome, which is a very fine affair. The king

Three footmen stand behind, holding on to the straps. It is exactly like the pictures of Cinderella. except that the queen is in modern dress, of course. The king's carriage is drawn by six horses with white plumes on their heads and with splendid harness.

The sidewalks are packed with people, but two lines of soldiers keep all carriages away except those of the procession. When they get to the house of parliament, the king, in a fine uniform with a brass helmet and an immense white plume on it. gets out of his carriage and helps the queen out of hers, and then the people shout: Viva il Re! and Viva la Regina! Inside, the great parliament chamber is in the form of a semicircle; the king's throne is on the straight side of the wall. The deputies wear evening dress with white gloves. The queen and court ladies sit in a box high up on the right, the diplomatic corps in another large box on the left, and other people, who have tickets, in the gallery between. The king makes a speech, each deputy in turn takes the oath of allegiance, cheers the royal family, and it is over. This year the king's son, the Prince of Naples, and his nephew, the Duke of Aosta, both just twenty-one, took the oath, too, which everybody seemed to think very interesting. Then all march out in great state, the king and queen drive away slowly, eyeglasses, opera glasses and cameras point at them from all sides, soldiers present arms, and beggars beg, bands play and dogs bark, and all go home to break

A Boy Went A-fishing.

The boy's fishing pole was fastened un der the root of a tree on the river bank the other day, and he was sitting in the sun playing with a doc. "Fishing?" inquired a man passing along the road.

'Yep," answered the boy, as briefly, "Nice dog you've got there. What's his name!"

"Fish? That's a queer name for a dog What do you call him that for?"

"'Cause he won't bite." Then the man proceeded on his way.

A Clever Cow.

I saw a curious thing one day when out walking with a friend. ONE WAY TO SHAKE AN APPLE TREE. While we were looking we noticed a cow go up to an apple tree and wedge in the stem between her horns and neck and deliberately shake the tree, bringing down a shower of apples. This done, the clever cow and her companions ate the fruit and then she went to another tree and shook that, and so on. The same cow did all the shaking, and the funny thing was that she never attempted to shake an old stiff tree, but always selected a young one that would shake easily.

The Bagging Question. The following extracts from letters to the Boston Journal of Commerce on the bagging problem are interesting: A correspondent at Savannah, Ga., says: "Last season and the season before, owing to the jute trust, as you are aware, and the high prices for jute bagging, substitutes were used. Among those which we handled agen pinestray. those which we handled were pine-straw bagging, which came nearer being a perfect substitute than any of the others, and sheetbagging, which came nearer being a perfect substitute than any of the others, and sheeting, such as osnaburg and cotton bagging. This year we doubt whether any substitutes will be used, for the reason that the jute trust is broken up. Prices of jute bagging are lower than they have been before speculation in bagging occurred, and the planters have gotten over their deep prejudice against jute. There is no question that there has never been any substitute that could in any way touch jute bagging, and unless another similar occurrence should happen we think that the only bagging that will be used for a good many years to come will be jute bagging." Others write as follows: Vicksburg, Miss.—'In this section of the cotton belt planters only use jute bagging as covering for their cotton." Houston, Tex.—'The bulk of the Texas cotton crop will be baled in jute bagging, possibly a very small percentage will be cotton bagging, but we do not think the latter will amount to very much.' Memphis, Tenn.—'Our merchants are now contracting for juce bagging to be delivered in the fall. The price is low, and from all Memphis, Tenn.—"Our merchants are now contracting for juce bagging to be delivered in the fall. The price is low, and from all the information we can get, nothing else will be used in this district for baling next season's crop. The month of May was quite unfavorable to the growing crop, as was also the first week in June, and the condition then was not good; but on the 7th inst. we had a good rain, and since then we have had warm weather and plenty of moisture, and in consequence there has been a great improvement."
